Teach Children That Their Character Counts

Tell children that their success and happiness depend on who they are inside, not what they have or how they look. Teach them the difference between right and wrong and how to guide their thoughts and actions by the Six Pillars of Character. Explain these words and use examples from your own life, history, and the news.

Enforce the Six Pillars of Character

Praise good behavior and discourage undesirable behavior by imposing fair, consistent consequences that prove you are serious about character. Demonstrate courage and firmness by enforcing the core values even when it is difficult or costly to do so.

Advocate Character

Continuously encourage children to live up to the Six Pillars of Character. Don't be neutral about the importance of their character, and don't be casual about improper conduct. Be clear and uncompromising that you expect your children to be trustworthy, respectful, responsible, fair, caring, and good citizens.

Model Good Behavior

Everything you say and do sends a message about your values. Be sure these messages reinforce your lessons about doing the right thing even when it is difficult. When you slip, be accountable, apologize sincerely, and do better!

Create Your Own Character Development Initiative

The Six Pillars of Character will help you be effective.

Make sure your program is:

Purposeful

Articulate clear objectives.

Pervasive

The Six Pillars of Character should permeate your culture.

Repetitive

Messages about the meaning and importance of good character should be repeated frequently.

Consistent

Attitudes, words, and actions should be consistent with the Six Pillars.

Creative

Employ a variety of direct and indirect teaching strategies to engage the imagination.

Concrete

Values should be grounded with real examples in realistic and relevant situations.
